About eLearning Program:- Driven by rapid urbanization and growing populations as well as our unsustainable consumption and production practices, world is facing today challenges in form of colossal quantum of waste being generated on one side and the depletion of natural resources at a fast rate on the other side. Adding to these woes are environmental impacts caused due to both of these issues. When we connect the dots we realize that both of these challenges can be converted into opportunity by shifting our business practices from linear to circular economy based models. Today we have waste entrepreneurs globally and all over the country, who have tinkered with technology and come up with the best ways to not just dispose of garbage but to convert it into money-making products and businesses saving environment and creating livelihood at the same time.
