About Webinar:

Organizations striving for continuous improvement must select appropriate monitoring parameters which are to be reviewed on both short-term basis – like daily or weekly as well as long term basis like monthly, quarterly, etc. These parameters which are also called KPIs needs to be carefully chosen to ensure that they do not over burden the employees in addition to their regular work. KPIs should be selected in such a way that employees can progressively adapt to the culture which focuses on value maximization and waste minimization on a continuous basis.

KPIs applicable for a department may not be applicable for another. Similarly, KPIs suitable for a sector of industry may be irrelevant for another sector because of various factors like availability of resources, process adopted by the organizations, etc.

Webinar Coverage:

- Overview of Continuous Improvement Cycle
- Commonly used KPIs in organizations
- Stagewise selection of KPIs best suitable for company based on its mission.
