Announces Online Training Programme on

“Good Manufacturing Practices (GMP) and Schedule IV requirements for Food Manufacturers”

1st September 2022 (One Half Day)

14:30 hrs to 17:00 hrs

PROGRAMME COVERAGE

❖ What Are GMPs & Schedule IV Requirements:

Good manufacturing practice (GMP) is a system for ensuring that manufacturers produce goods consistently and in a controlled way. GMP contains basic preventive guidelines for factory and facility operations. Good manufacturing practice aims to minimize risks that we cannot eliminate through testing the final products. In India GMP and GHP requirements are made mandatory through Schedule 4-General Hygienic and Sanitary practices to be followed by all Food Business operators.

❖ Why It's Important To Understand Schedule IV:

The establishment in which food is being handled, processed, manufactured, stored, distributed by the food business operator whether holder of registration certificate or a license as per the norms laid down in these regulations and the persons handling them should conform to the sanitary and hygienic requirement, food safety measures and other standards as specified under Schedule IV requirements. It is also the responsibility of the food business operator to ensure adherence to necessary requirements.
