About the Webinar

The demand for both creative and concrete problem-solving along with the abstract and strategic thinking is always there in the business world. All generic frameworks including management fads are heuristics and they speed up the process of problem-solving and finding solutions in the short term but it is at the expense of autonomous thinking. Philosophy can help articulate the blind-spots of business by looking behind its assumed certainties and theoretical preconditions.

Exposure to philosophy can broaden the reflectivity-horizon of business leaders and help them manage complexity and make sound decisions. Though philosophy is the oldest academic discipline it is largely unrecognized in management education and development. Considering the importance of philosophy in management development this webinar has been designed to sensitize the business leaders on this issue.
